Foles shared his wife's message with fans after the announcement.

"Tori has written a beautiful heartfelt post explaining what we have gone through this last week. We are grateful for all the love, support and prayers," he tweeted.

Foles had been absent from the Jaguars' off-season training session on Tuesday for personal reasons, head coach Doug Marrone said.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with Nick and his family," Marrone told reporters. "He knows, like anything else, that we're here for him."

Foles joined the Jaguars this year. He previously played for the Philadelphia Eagles, and helped lead them to their first Super Bowl win last year. He was named Super Bowl MVP after completing 28 of 43 passes for 373 yards and three touchdowns during that game.

After the Super Bowl win, Foles said accepting the award with his wife and daughter, Lily, was the highlight of the celebration. "We're Super Bowl champs, but time does stop when you look in your daughter's eyes and you get to celebrate this moment," he said.
